27th January, 2016

Stanford ASES (Asia-Pacific Student Entrepreneurship Society) is excited and pleased to invite Fanny Amskiy from Indonesia to participate in ASES Summit 2016 at Stanford University.

Stanford ASES is a college student organization whose mission is to educate and network the future leaders in entrepreneurship, business, and the Asia-Pacific in order to foster a global entrepreneurship society. Founded by Stanford students, ASES is connected to the heart of Silicon Valley, the worldwide leader in high-tech entrepreneurship and innovation. Through ASES Summit 2016, ASES fosters a global network of college students interested in entrepreneurship.

ASES Summit is the premier conference on global entrepreneurship that includes 40 ASES Stanford members and 40 international student delegates chosen from top universities across the Asia-Pacific region. This year, selected international delegates come from China, Taiwan, India, Japan, Philippines, Korea, Indonesia, Thailand, Australia and New Zealand. Past keynote speakers include Jen-Hsun Huang (founder of NVIDIA Corporation), Konstantin Guericke (founder of LinkedIn) and Peter Thiel (founder of PayPal). For more information about the conference, feel free to visit http://ases.stanford.edu/summit/ or contact us at asessummit2016@gmail.com.

ASES Summit 2016 will be held for one week from Sunday, April 3rd 2016 to Saturday, April 9th 2016 at Stanford University in Stanford, California. During the week, delegates will participate in speaker events held by high-profile entrepreneurs, various networking and social events, company tours of the top companies and start-ups in the Silicon Valley, and a challenging pitch competition judged by a panel of top venture capitalists and executives. Apart from the strong educational component, ASES Summit is an immersive social and cultural event where delegates will meet like-minded innovators and friends. ASES Stanford will take the responsibility of providing housing at Stanford, transportation, and meals during the week-long conference.

In discussion with the International Center at Stanford University we encourage you to apply for B1/B2 visas or, if applicable, utilize the visa waiver program. U.S. immigration regulations state that ‘aliens should be classified visitors for business, if otherwise eligible, if they are traveling to the United States to: ..... (5) Participate in scientific, educational, professional, or business conventions, conferences or seminars; ’ We believe that this provision of the regulations is applicable in your situation.
